

EXHIBITION BUILD FUN FACTS

More than 40 people from multiple departments across the Adler were involved in bringing this exhibition to life

Over 60 museum guests were interviewed to help shape the exhibit experience

Stargazers Hub is Curator Katie Boyce-Jacino's first curatorial project at the Adler

The exhibition had 29 titles before becoming Stargazers Hub

All of the design, graphics, graphic installation, and painting for the exhibition was done by our in-house designers

There are about 50 of the Adler's collections objects on display

About 1/3 of the objects included have never been on exhibit before

The oldest object is an astrolabe from the 14th century

The original 1930 terrazzo tile floor has been uncovered for the first time in decades and includes an elaborate compass rose inset into the tile

It took 15 months to create Stargazers Hub from start to finish: people got engaged, babies were born, pets were adopted—one even became the inspiration for a section of the exhibition
